Executive Director’s Report

Economic security remains a distant dream for many families in Maine, including here in Washington and Hancock counties. Over 12.6 percent of all Maine citizens live in poverty according to Maine Community Action Association’s Poverty in Maine 2006 report. The number of children living in poverty is even greater. The rate of poverty in Washington County is 50% higher than for the rest of the State of Maine.

The primary goal for 2007 identified by the Board of Directors of WHCA was to focus on economic development with an emphasis on Washington County. They agree that the best way to achieve self-sufficiency is by having a good paying job with benefits. Down East Business Alliance (DBA) has been working with other economic development entities in Washington County to identify the continuing needs of micro-enterprises and to address those needs. DBA is undertaking the 30th edition of its award-winning Incubator Without Walls program in the Machias Area which began in the fall of 2007.

Substantial progress has been made on the “Needs Assessment.” The purpose of the Needs Assessment is to answer several questions: Is WHCA providing the services that are needed by the people we serve in Hancock and Washington counties? Are we doing a good job providing those services? Do the programs really make a difference? Over the past year, WHCA held four community forums at which we received critical input from low-income residents, service providers, and members of the public. We are also undertaking a survey of clients to have better input about what they believe their needs are. The report will be completed during the next year.

On the cover: Children at Wee Care Child Care in Cherryfield spent an afternoon creating the WHCA logo using finger paints. Childcare provider Lori Barbee controlled the chaos as the children patiently worked on their project. Our little artists are: (left to right) Joseph Ray-Smith, Rowan Perrin, Myah Jellison, Brady Reynolds, Savannah Carter and Zoe Reynolds.
During the past year, WHCA had an incredibly successful capital fund-raiser for Friendship Cottage, the adult day program and caregiver resource center. This program serving the elderly and their family caregivers in Hancock County will be the only one of its kind in the State of Maine. Over $1,000,000 was raised in just over a year to acquire the Left Bank Café, renovate it, and offer the program. WHCA was successful in obtaining $340,000 in grants to pay for part of the renovation and purchase a vehicle for transporting program participants. The Caregiver Resource Center opened in November 2007 and the Adult Day Program will start in March 2008.

Community Services completed many of the REACH program goals to provide alternative energy sources. This included installation of heat pumps in 48 homes and a wind turbine to reduce electrical consumption at the Winter Harbor Elderly Housing Complex.

The Helping Hands Garage in Transportation Services has evolved into a successful program that purchases reasonably priced reliable vehicles and underwrites loans at reasonable rates for working families. This successful program has provided over 60 families with reliable transportation to help them reach self-sufficiency.

Family Resource Center Down East is working hard on the Medication Assistance Program funded with a $250,000 grant from Maine Health Access Foundation. So far, it has helped numerous families in Hancock and Washington counties qualify for free or low cost prescription drugs.

Much has been accomplished during the past year, yet much remains to be done. WHCA has its mission and a group of committed employees prepared to address the needs of those in poverty in Washington and Hancock counties.

The role of Washington Hancock Community Agency’s Board of Directors is to define and meet its overall responsibility by governing the Agency in a manner that is consistent with its mission and responsive to client needs.

The Agency’s mission is “WHCA brings community resources together to help people in Washington and Hancock counties to achieve self-sufficiency and a better quality of life”.

The following actions were undertaken by the Board of Directors during the year ended on September 30, 2007:

1. The Board established an Evaluation Committee to judge the effectiveness of the Agency’s operating divisions. Down East Business Alliance was the first division evaluated.
2. The Board authorized the purchase and renovation of the Friendship Cottage in Blue Hill.
3. The Board agreed to the following Goals for the agency in 2006-07:
   a. To support existing micro-enterprises and assist in the creation of new micro-enterprises.
   b. To enhance partnerships with existing State and county economic development organizations.
   c. To determine the service needs for the people living in Washington and Hancock counties.
   d. To improve the quality of life for the elderly.
   e. To start enterprises to generate new revenues and increase the Agency’s self-sufficiency.
   f. To undertake a planned giving program.
4. The Board authorized an Advisory Committee for the Friendship Cottage.
5. The Board formed a Needs Assessment Committee to survey Agency clients and planned community forums.
6. The Board formed a Mapping Committee to identify the geographic areas benefiting from Agency programs.

During the year the Board preserved the Agency’s mission; established and monitored the Agency’s policies and procedures, and evaluated the performance of the Agency as a whole. I am grateful to have served with such a dedicated Board of Directors as well as the hardworking employees who make a difference in lives of our clients and neighbors.

“Dusty” Stanley Receives Self-Sufficiency Award

WHCA’s annual Self-Sufficiency Award recognizes someone who embodies the agency mission: to achieve self-sufficiency and a better quality of life. This year’s award was presented to Delorean “Dusty” Stanley at WHCA’s Annual Meeting on October 23.

Just six months ago, “Dusty” Stanley was on SSI and struggling to make ends meet after he became disabled. For a short time, Dusty’s niece and her husband took care of him. They found him a place to live through the Pinebrook Apartments in Franklin. Dusty had a small pick-up, but the truck was in very bad shape. In order to earn a few dollars here and there, he would drive some of the tenants from Pinebrook to their medical appointments and to the grocery store. When his truck became too unreliable and he could no longer take people to their appointments, Dusty came to WHCA for help.

Through the Helping Hands Garage program Dusty was able to obtain an affordable, reliable Buick LeSabre. With his new car, Dusty became a volunteer driver for WHCA and is now self-sufficient.
When April Morse came to us in June 2007, she was homeless and driving a car with over 200,000 miles on it. She applied to Helping Hands Garage and wrote in her application, “The car I have is about to die and is not fixable, a hazard. And I need to get to work.” She noted that her ex-husband is a “semi driver and he has all his driving buddies on the look out for the car I use now. Please help!” The staff at HHG helped April purchase a 1998 Malibu which is running well. She has been able to take several home care jobs and is currently applying for full-time employment. She is now a student at Calais Technical College, studying childhood education. She says of HHG, “It came just in time. I couldn’t ask for better.” When asked what happened to her old car, she said, “I sold it for parts and it helped me make one of my payments.”

Transportation Services

WHCA’s Transportation Services staff and volunteer drivers travel over a million miles each year, helping people access medical services, employment opportunities, senior food programs, and other important services.

Mission:

Helping Hands Garage is dedicated to helping income eligible people buy vehicles that provide transportation to work for them and their families at a reasonable cost and finance rate. Our primary goals are to enable people with low incomes to develop good credit histories so they will qualify for loans from mainstream lenders, and to provide them safe, affordable transportation so they can commute to work and access medical services. This program has grown considerably; and has a successful repayment history. To date, HHG has helped over 60 clients.

Significant Developments/Achievements

The state has decided to centralize child care vouchers and slots programs, so our division has been tasked with finding other funding sources.

Family Resource Center Downeast has numerous programs. It provides assistance with the cost of child care for eligible families and children. It administers the Child Care Food Program, a United States Department of Agriculture program that insures healthy meals are served to children attending child care by reimbursing providers with the cost of serving those meals. The Washington County Child Abuse Prevention Council coordinates various activities designed to prevent child abuse and neglect through education and coordination of community efforts. The council also sponsors the “Baby Think It Over” program which provides education about proper care of children through the use of realistic, computerized “babies.” FRCD also operates the Reading is Fundamental program, Downeast Medical Assistance program and provides car seats for children.
Funding Cuts

Many children benefited from Maine Department of Health and Human Resources funding of the childcare slots program, like Alicia Cote (shown above). The program provided a network of support for licensed family childcare homes. Funding was used for supplies such as crayons, paints and craft materials and for training, child safety programs and other services. The program has an uncertain future as funding has been cut dramatically.

Family Resource Center Downeast

helps build strong families, develops healthy children, and creates safe communities by providing services and support systems that build on family strengths. We offer an extensive library and information clearinghouse for families, child care providers, and other community members.

Windmill Installation
Washington Hancock Community Agency hosted a ribbon-cutting ceremony in August at Mill Stream Heights apartments in Winter Harbor to mark the completion of a new ten kilowatt electricity-generating windmill designed to meet the common power needs of the 16-unit facility. This windmill serves to advance the mission of WHCA’s REACH Initiative, conducted in collaboration with MaineHousing and Kennebec Valley Community Action Program. As a result of this energy efficiency initiative, eight of the sixteen Mill Stream heights apartments also now have new cold-climate heat pumps that greatly improve energy efficiency.

Numerous state and local officials attended the ribbon-cutting, including Dale McCormick, Director of MaineHousing; Jo-Ann Choate, MaineHousing Energy Programs Manager; John Joseph, owner of Joseph and Associates; Dick Fickett, owner of Fickett Property Management; Tim King, WHCA Executive Director; Eleanor West, WHCA Community Services Director; Roger Barto, Winter Harbor Town Manager; John Rush and Kate Burgess of Evolo Energy Solutions; Don and Claudia Lewis, owners of Nyle Corporation of Brewer; and several directors of Winter Harbor Housing.
THAW Fund Receives a Boost

The Heating and Warmth Fund received a much needed boost in the fall when the New York Times published an article by Erik Eckholm, “Barely Getting By and Facing a Cold Maine Winter.”

Mr. Eckholm wrote: “In this long-depressed ‘down east’ region, where the wild blueberry patches have turned a brilliant crimson, thousands of elderly residents live on crushingly meager incomes. This winter promises to be especially chilling, with fuel oil prices rising and fuel assistance expected to decline. But many assume that others are worse off than themselves and are too proud to ask for assistance, according to groups that run meal programs and provide aid for heating and weatherizing.”

The article drew response from all over the country and donations were made to the fund by generous individuals from as far away as California. The fund was particularly crucial this year because of cuts to LIHEAP funding coupled with the steep rise in the price of oil.

Dolly Jordan has been using WHCA programs for over ten years now. “Without the programs, I’d be lost,” she says. “I wouldn’t know how to make ends meet.” Dolly was featured in the story in the New York Times. She says she has become pen pals with some of the readers who learned about her through that story. Through WHCA, she has weatherized her home for the winter and that has helped. “I’m doing pretty good now,” she says. “I’m doing OK.”

More than 100 fun and practical items were donated for Washington Hancock Community Agency’s Third Annual Fall Free Auction, which was held at Jordan’s Snack Bar in Ellsworth. District Attorney Michael Povich officiated at the event which raised over $4,000 for the Fall Free program.

Items in the auction ranged from simple and practical things, such as a coffee mug from S.L. Woodworth in Eastport or an oil change from Stanley Subaru in Ellsworth, to fun things, such as a 1969 Mustang die cast car from NAPA Auto Parts in Bucksport or a pink leather jacket from Jekyll & Hyde in Bar Harbor. The list included gift certificates to area restaurants and stores, clothing, jewelry, ski resort passes, ferry tickets, hardware items, lamps, a couple of cat leashes and a stuffed monkey. The event benefited our Fall Free program.

The Fall Free program is designed to address safety issues in the homes of elderly residents. Among older adults, falls in and around the home are the most common cause of injuries and hospital admissions. The money raised at the auction will be used to make necessary safety modifications to such areas as ramps, floors, stairs, railings, walkways and bathrooms.

Farmers’ Market Assessment Project

This summer, DBA received funding from an anonymous donor through a Maine Community Foundation component fund to perform assessments of local farmers’ markets. The purpose of the project was to see what recommendations could be made to make the markets more sustainable. Stronger farmer’s markets result in stronger local food production, more economically healthy food producers and healthy eating for local residents. DBA staff performed assessments at 12 markets in the two counties, visiting each market at least once, but more often at least two times. The final report has several recommendations to strengthen markets and improve local food sales. We found that markets with strong municipal support and committed market managers fared the best. The work done this summer is forming the basis for grant proposals this fall and winter and will continue to provide supporting data to DBA proposals for some time to come.

DBA channels resources to boost prosperity for local entrepreneurs. Through comprehensive training and technical assistance programs, DBA sparks business growth and employment expansion.

DBA Marks 30th IWW

Through the Incubator Without Walls program, Down East Business Alliance has helped dozens of small businesses and micro businesses get launched and grow. Since 1996, IWW has been providing business training and technical assistance, marketing assistance, business counseling, growth grants, loans and other resources along with an opportunity for small business owners to network with other businesses. This year, DBA began its 30th IWW program for small businesses.

Steve Ftorek, who runs Cobscook Hikes and Paddles with his wife Tessa, is a veteran of the IWW program. Steve says that the contacts he made with other businesses through the program led to key partnerships with elder hostels and birdwatching groups. “Your business grows because of the contacts you make,” he says. “The workshops are great for the networking which helps other people put you out there, too.”

Steve also says he learned through IWW that marketing is very important. He’s gotten the word out about Cobscook Hikes and Paddles through his website. Many of his customers now come from out of state and from Southern Maine. “We’ve learned how to reach people better in this new, Internet age,” he says.

Micro-enterprises (businesses with four employees or fewer), are part of a growing trend in this area, particularly in Washington County. Approximately 32 percent of jobs in Washington County currently come from micro businesses and in Hancock County they account for almost 30 percent of jobs.

DBA is helping local businesses grow, one business at a time.
Friendship Cottage Groundbreaking Ceremony

At the groundbreaking for Friendship Cottage held Monday, October 29, two things were made abundantly clear. First is that the project’s very existence and success to date is thanks to the overwhelming support of the community. Second is that much work remains before the planned opening of the new Adult Day Service program in March 2008.

“This could not have happened without the cooperation and assistance of many people,” stated Tim King, Executive Director of Washington Hancock Community Agency (WHCA). Emphasizing that Friendship Cottage is truly a community-based project, King took the opportunity to thank a number of folks in attendance and the more than 350 area residents who have contributed to the purchase and for the renovation of the facility.

Brooksville resident John Eysenbach, who co-chaired the successful capital campaign with Surry resident Albert Small, was on hand as King recognized the campaign committee for exceeding its goal and raising more than $1 million to date from individuals, businesses, private family foundations, and federal grants.

King thanked Blue Hill Selectman Jim Schatz, also in attendance, for the town’s support in securing the federal grants and recognized members of the WHCA board of directors and the Friendship Cottage advisory board, many of whom were on hand for the groundbreaking. Those WHCA board members included Joan Weber (Little Deer Isle), Martha Beathem (Ellsworth), and Craig Schoppe (Ellsworth) while Ms. Weber, Oz Bonsey (Surry), Joan Bothwell (Penobscot), Barbara Clark (Ellsworth), Nance Eaton (Brooklin), and Dr. John Tyler (Blue Hill) represented the project’s advisory board.

Caregiver Resource Center Opens at BHMH

The Friendship Cottage Caregiver Resource Center (CRC) opened in its temporary quarters on the third floor in the Blue Hill Memorial Hospital (BHMH) this fall. Services offered in the center include information on community resources, federal and state program information, caregiver education, support groups, long-term and transitional-care planning, and relief from the stress and burden of care giving.

This space in the hospital’s old wing has been most generously donated to the project until renovations on the future home of Friendship Cottage are complete. BHMH Social Service Director Anne Dickens and hospital CEO Tim Garrity have been instrumental in making this happen and we thank them for their efforts.

Through a happy partnership with WHCA, the respected and dedicated staff of Eastern Agency on Aging (EAA) will provide professional staffing for the resource center. Volunteer opportunities also exist in the center. Brooksville resident Gerry Bryan, the chair of the Friendship Cottage advisory board, states, “The Caregiver Resource Center will be there to answer your questions and help you build a team to cope.”

“We’re very excited to be part of this,” says Val Sauda, EAA community services director, “This will really be the best place to get information on the local level.”

EAA Executive Director Noelle Merrill sees the center as an opportunity to increase her organization’s visibility and accessibility in our community. “Most of our field staffers work out of their homes,” Merrill said, “This will put our representatives out in the public where they are able to be seen.”
A Salute To Volunteers

Extreme Home Makeover Taps WHCA for Volunteers

When “Extreme Makeover: Home Edition” hit Milbridge in September, WHCA was behind the scenes to help make it all happen. Volunteer coordinator Bobbi Harris rounded up around 400 able bodies for the project, many of them from WHCA.

The volunteers worked night and day to help build a new home for Brittany Ray and Ron Smith. The couple was selected for the project because of their contribution as teachers. Ray was named Maine’s Teacher of the Year in 2006. Broughman Builders worked along with more than 100 local contractors to construct the home using hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of materials and services provided free of charge. WHCA’s contribution could best be described as “sweat-equity.”

Blake Donates $5,000 to Help Other Drivers

Transportation Services received a $5,000 donation from one of our volunteer drivers this year. The gift from Gloria Blake of Jonesport (right, shown here with Linda Belfiore) will be used to help volunteers pay for repairs so they can safely drive people to needed services. WHCA intends to seek matching funds to increase the amount available to help with these repairs.

Gloria has served as a volunteer driver for more than three years and at one time relied upon this service.

David Sanderson Receives Annual Ethel Schwalbe Award

Employee of the Year: Steve Bobrovnikoff

Steve Bobrovnikoff was honored for 18 years of service to WHCA this year and presented with an award at the annual holiday party. Steve began driving for WHCA’s Transportation Services in 1989. Barbara Donovan, who was Transportation Director at the time, called him “Steady Eddy,” for his consistently good work and attitude. Steve was also noted for his punctuality. In presenting the award, Tim King said, “He will be remembered as the driver who called exactly at 6:30 every morning without fail. We could set our clocks and watches by his phone call.” He was always genuinely concerned for his passengers and paid attention to their special needs. Steve is retiring and will be missed by the entire staff at WHCA.

Special Thanks to Joan Weber

Joan Weber joined WHCA’s Board of Directors in 1998. In 2000, she received the Ethel Schwalbe Award, given to a member of the board who goes above and beyond the normal duties of a board member. Through the years, Joan has served on numerous committees, been on the executive committee and assisted in the hiring process for the Keeping Children Safe program. She retired from the board this year. The board awarded Joan special emeritus status for her many years of outstanding service to Washington Hancock Community Agency.

A Tribute to William Stone

William Frank Stone, a former member of WHCA’s Board of Directors, died Dec. 1, 2007, at his home in Prospect Harbor. Bill graduated from University of Maine with a Bachelor of Arts in 1956. He received the Ph.D. in 1963, and enjoyed a 31-year teaching career at the University of Maine.

Bill was active in Democratic politics and ran for local and state offices. He wrote a book entitled “The Psychology of Politics,” published in 1974. He was a founder of International Society of Political Psychology.

Bill married Barbara Wilson McCleave in 1991 and they moved to Prospect Harbor in 1995, where he indulged his love of sailing. Bill enjoyed one season as a stern man on a lobster boat in Corea. He and Barbara shared many travels, especially to Latin America and Europe. He was chairman of Schoodic Futures, a community development group. He conceived and put into motion the organization of Friends of Schoodic, now part of Friends of Acadia.

Bill had been on the Board of the Washington Hancock Community Agency for a number of years and was active in many other organizations and projects. Bill served on the micro enterprise loan committee for many years, helping businesses in both counties get started. He was a lifetime learner, insatiably curious, well read and always ready for new experiences and projects. We at WHCA are grateful for his contribution and commitment to our mission.
